(By The Associated Press)
A union threat to call on all organized labor for an over-all nation-wide general strike if the government moves "any of our ships, as it has threatened to do," was voiced today by a union official as the world's greatest maritime fleet lay landlocked behind a ring of striking, picketing AFL seamen.

(By The Associated Press)
The world's greatest Maritime fleet lay landlocked in America's coastal ports today behind an unswerving ring of striking, picketing AFL seamen.

Pier sheds were dark behind closed entrances and cargo booms were fixed tight as thousands of vessels and a half million men were idle in the greatest Maritime strike in history.

This was the picture as the strike of members of the Sailors Union of the Pacific and the Seafarers International Union entered its third day, and the second day of picketing.

Transocean passenger traffic was suspended; import and export of raw materials vital to the nation's mills and factories were halted; more than 250,000 tons of relief cargo for Europe and Asia were tied up in 125 UNRRA ships.

2,500 Ships Idle
Officers of the two unions claimed more than 2,500 ships lay in Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf ports without crews.

Both American and Foreign vessels were hit by the strike—either directly by the striking seamen—seeking a reversal of a wage stabilization board ruling denying them the full wage increase won in recent negotiations—or by members of other unions who have honored the picket lines.

The chain of pickets was expected to be extended even further today—to all New York harbor tugboats manned by AFL crews.

Official of the SUP said the picketing extension would halt all harbor activity in New York except for a few railway barge tugs. The tugboats were expected to cease operation by 4 p. m. (EDT).

Fuel, Food Hit
The small vessels normally bring in an estimated 80 per cent of New York city fuel and a half of its food supplies.

During a tugboat strike last February, fuel oil and coal supplies dwindled to virtual exhaustion leading Mayor William O'Dwyer to order the shutdown of the city's business and amusement activities, except for certain exempted enterprises directly concerned with maintaining life and health.

Since the start of the Maritime strike Thursday, the tugs have towed barges carrying foodstuffs and other commodities for the Metropolitan area but have refused to aid ocean-going ships to enter or leave the harbor.

Costliest Strike
Max Korenblatt, chairman of the SIU-SUP joint strike committee, said the action against the tugs would affect about 2,200 boats. He was unable to estimate the number of men involved.

COURT ACTS ON DIVORCE SUITS

Judge W. C. Sheely today referred one divorce action back to the prothonotary's office for 30 days to give the libellant opportunity to obtain counsel and file exceptions to the report of the master dismissing the libel and recommending that a divorce be refused; granted one divorce, and referred the record in another case to the master for the purpose of taking additional testimony if the libellant desires.

A decree was granted to Guy L. Bream, New Oxford R. D., against Loretta (Arnold) Bream, Biglerville, on the grounds of cruel and barbarous treatment. The couple was married February 13, 1942.

The case of Anna (Washington) Livingston, Gettysburg, against Oliver J. Livingston, Philadelphia, was sent back to the prothonotary, after the master's report found the evidence insufficient to support a charge of desertion. The couple was married August 19, 1935.

Referred back to the master was the case of Loring R. Nail, Cash-town, against Sarah E. (Keckler) Nail, Gettysburg, in which desertion was also charged. The respondent, according to the record, left her husband to live with her mother. In an opinion written in the case, Judge Sheely said: "The inference that the separation was with his consent is materially strengthened by the fact that he voluntarily supported her during the entire time."

TO WORK AT FAIR

ENROLLMENT UP AT SEMINARY AS NEW YEAR OPENS

With a marked increase in enrollment that indicates a return to pre-war levels by 1948, the Gettysburg Lutheran Theological seminary has opened its 121st academic year after the first summer suspension of classes there since the beginning of the war.

There are 60 students enrolled with several others expected to enroll. The figure is 10 above the number who studied there last year and includes 28 first year men. Fifteen of the students are World War II veterans.

Students have returned from summer field work and most faculty members are back from summer missions for the church or work at educational institutions.

New Librarian

The Rev. Herbert H. Schmidt, alumnus of the seminary and former pastor of the Mt. Joy Lutheran church, has returned to the campus as seminary librarian. His wife, the former Miss Janet Biesecker of Orrtanna, and their two sons accompanied the Rev. Mr. Schmidt here and are residing with friends. Later they will move to Knoxlyn until suitable quarters can be found in Gettysburg. They came here from Woodsboro, Md., where the Rev. Mr. Schmidt served a Lutheran charge for 10 years.

The seminary library continues in its present quarters until the new library building, begun this summer, is completed late next winter or in the early spring.

The new librarian has been studying during the summer at the Columbia university school of library science and will continue his post-graduate work there until he receives the degree of bachelor of library science in several years.

Remodeled House in Use

The West house, formerly the engineer's house on the site of the new library recently moved to the western part of the campus grove, is in use now. One apartment is being occupied by Dr. Bertha Paulsen of the faculty and the other by the family of Walter Klotz, veteran student at the seminary and a mathematics instructor at Gettysburg college.

Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen will not return to the seminary until the end of the first term in November. He continues on his mission in Europe investigating religious writings produced during the war years in European languages. He will select those to be translated and arrange for publication rights. Most of his work is being done in northern Europe.

Address by Dr. Wentz

Dr. Raymond Stamm continues at Devitt's camp at Allenwood, Pa., yet unable to return to his work here because of his health. His work is being handled by the Rev. Otto Reimherr, pastor of a Lutheran church in Yonkers, N. Y., who spends three days each week at the seminary.

Doctor A. R. Wentz, seminary president, addressed the student body at the opening of the seminary year on the subject "New Aspects of the Church's Task," making some reference to information he gathered on his recent trip to Europe. Classes began Wednesday and Wednesday evening the faculty members and their wives were hosts to the students and their wives at a reception at the seminary refectory.

Weather Forecast

Sunday, mostly cloudy and cooler, possibly light rain in the southeast portion.

Colonel Thomas H. Nixon Visits Gettysburg After Distinguished War Service

The biggest "industrialist" in all Europe during the past year was a Gettysburg native, Colonel Thomas H. Nixon.

The colonel, who visited here Friday and this morning during his first trip to the United States in almost four years, as chief of ordnance for the ETO had charge of machinery, equipment and factories from Norway to Algeria and from Vienna to the Azores.

He was assigned as chief of ordnance in August, 1945.

Details of the job that was done during that time will appear soon in the Ordnance magazine and until that time the information still remains in the unavailable stage. As with any officer on duty what details he may give out must be cleared by his theater.

Lauds General Patton

But the local officer can and does talk of the skill and ability of General George Patton, under whom he served as ordnance officer throughout the operations of the Third Army in the ETO and with whom he served in the First Armored Division in the U. S. before the war.

Stating that General Patton was "one of the great field commanders of all time" Colonel Nixon says his former commanding officer was one who "demanded and obtained almost the impossible and yet was a man who was loved and respected by anyone close to him."

Patton presented Nixon with the Distinguished Service Medal at a ceremony on the night before the general was fatally injured in an automobile accident in Germany. He had asked Nixon to go along on the trip the next day, but the colonel had declined.

The DSM was presented to Nixon for his work as ordnance officer for the Third Army from the breakthrough at Avaranche to Moselle and from the beginning of the Battle of the Bulge to the end of the war.

Wins Many Awards

During his four years overseas, starting with the invasion of Morocco through the invasion of Sicily and France and Germany Colonel Nixon probably received more decorations than any other countian.

His awards include the Distinguished Service Medal, the Legion of Merit, given for his work in the landing in Morocco; the Bronze Star for his work in the Sicilian campaign; a cluster to the bronze star (second award) for his work in part of the French campaign; French Legion of Honor, French Croix de Guerre, with palm; Rus-

LIBRARY PLANS FALL CAMPAIGN ON MEMBERSHIP

The Adams County Free Library association that has made more than 33,000 loans of books to more than 1,200 Adams countians since it began operations eight months ago, mapped plans at a board meeting Friday night for a fall membership drive to produce funds with which to continue operation and expansion of the county library service next year.

The board of directors, in session at the library's main reading room on Carlisle street, prepared an appeal to the over 3,100 charter members to renew their memberships for 1947—and to help the library enroll new members at these rates: Adult memberships, $1; group and business memberships, $5; children, 50 cents, and life memberships to individuals or organizations at $25.

The monthly report of Miss Kathryn Oller, county librarian, showed the library now owns 8,000 volumes and has in circulation an additional 3,500 volumes from the extension division of the state library at Harrisburg. Of the total number of books, more than 5,500 are divided among the two branch libraries, 11 rural book stations and more than 100 schools throughout the county.

21,000 Bookmobile Loans

Miss Oller told the board that of the 33,837 book and magazine loans made since January 1, more than 21,000 were made through the library bookmobile that makes monthly visits to every corner of the county. The librarian told the board of the recent opening of a new book station at a business place along the Hanover-Abbottstown road. Other book stations will be opened as rapidly as business places or homes are offered for that purpose, Miss Oller said.

The financial report for the last two months showed that 15 school districts in the county have appropriated school funds ranging from $10 to more than $100 each for rural book service by the library. Those districts whose contributions total $464 follow: Highland, Mt. Pleasant, Conewago, Oxford, Hamilton, Abbottstown, Berwick, Huntingdon, Tyrone, Liberty, Mt. Joy, New Oxford, Arendtsville, Arendtsville vocational district and Butler.

President O. H. Benson presided at the board meeting with 10 directors present and general plans were discussed for the second (Please turn to Page 3)

SAYS BYRNES' ADDRESS MAKES 'HORSE SENSE'

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

One of the most important points of Secretary of State Byrnes' Stuttgart speech on American policy regarding Germany strikes me as resting in this basic truth: "Germany must be given a chance to export goods in order to import enough to make her economy self-sustaining. Germany is part of Europe, and recovery in Europe, and particularly in the adjoining states, will be slow indeed if Germany, with her great resources of iron and coal, is turned into a poorhouse."

That is indisputable, and it interlocks with all other vital issues. These include the punishment and reform of the Reich, France's claims to the Rhineland and the Ruhr (which Mr. Byrnes rejected), and the boundary between Poland and Germany (which the secretary says America doesn't consider as settled.)

Danger of Collapse

It's just a matter of every-day horse-sense. Germany long had been the keystone of continental economy, and if you rip the keystone out of a structure there will be a collapse.

The division of Germany into four zones for purposes of allied occupation was in accordance with the Potsdam agreement among the Big Three. But it also was agreed that those zones should be unified for economic purposes so that there might be an exchange of foodstuffs, raw materials, manufactures and other essentials, and thus permit of legitimate recovery of the stricken Reich to a point where it could take care of itself and not have to be nursed like an invalid by the allies. Just such nursing has had to be done by the United States and Britain ever since the occupation began. They have had to import large quantities of foodstuffs in order to prevent actual hunger among the Germans. England has been exporting grain for this purpose when she herself hasn't had enough for her own needs.

To Mold Two Zones

However, neither Russia nor France has been willing to implement the Potsdam pact regarding economic unification. On the urgent invitation of the United States, England has agreed to meld the two zones economically, and this will help considerably.

So Germany has become a symbol of growing disension between Russia and the Anglo-American allies. Mr. Byrnes points this unhappy situation up when he says:

"It is not in the interest of the German people nor in the interest of world peace that Germany should become a pawn or partner in a military struggle for power between the East and the West."

But Byrnes didn't stop with the advocacy of economic unity. He declared that "The American people want to return the government of Germany to the German people."

Long Occupation

He made it clear, however, that the United States has no intention of foregoing any of its obligations in the reform of the Reich. Well, as things stand it may be a long cold day before the occupation is ended. Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov has indicated that it will be years before the Allies can entrust Germany with any real political power.

We can be sure, I believe, that so long as any Red soldiers remain in eastern Germany, just so long will American, British and French troops stay in their zones of occupation.

REV. G. H. KOONS IN NEW POST

The Rev. G. Howard Koons, pastor of Christ Evangelical and Reformed church, Roaring Spring, tendered his resignation to his congregation at the morning worship service last Sunday.

Rev. Mr. Koons went to Roaring Spring seven years ago and since that time Christ church has grown to one of the outstanding small congregations of the Evangelical and Reformed faith. Christ church was the first in its denomination to subscribe its quota for the Commission on World Service or Spiritual Relief for devastated countries. Likewise it was the first congregation in Central Pennsylvania Synod and one of the first in three Synods supporting the denominational Old Folks Home at Hagerstown to subscribe that quota for the new proposed Homestead to be erected.

In June 1940 the church observed its 36th anniversary with rededication services. Both interior and exterior of the church and parsonage have been redecored.

The membership of the church is 220, 90 new members having been added since Rev. Mr. Koons began his pastorate. A very substantial sum has been accumulated and placed in a reserve fund for future purposes.

Prior to his going to Roaring Spring, Rev. Mr. Koons began his ministry in the Cashtown Evangelical and Reformed church, where he served eight years. Mrs. Koons is the former Miss Mildred J. Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Brown, Fairfield.

RICE ATTACKS MARTIN RECORD

Altoona, Pa., Sept. 7 (AP)—Charging the present Republican state administration "hasn't even begun to deliver the goods" on a postwar construction program, Col. John S. Rice, Democratic gubernatorial nominee, last night called Governor Martin's plans "a vote-catching and budget-juggling device."

The former Gettysburg state senator told a meeting of Blair county democrats:

"He (Governor Martin) has made the excuse that it was difficult to get materials. Whether that is true or not, the fact remains that his postwar program hasn't even reached the materials state. It's still on the drawing boards, and some phases of it haven't even gone that far."

Rice said the "dawdling and delay" was "the strongest possible proof" there is nothing "to prevent that leadership from running out on the whole program after election day."

ASKS COURT OF HUMAN RIGHTS IN PEACE PACT

By ROBERT HEWETT

Paris, Sept. 7 (AP)—Australian H. F. Whitlam urged the peace conference today to set up an international "court of human rights" to fulfill the promises made in the Atlantic charter.

The conference's legal and drafting commission took up this proposal at its first meeting in examining a projected Australian amendment to the Finnish treaty which the Finnish committee had shelved for drafting.

"The Atlantic Charter," said Whitlam, "is the common constitution of all peoples everywhere, we should create organs to make these principles respected."

Whitlam asserted that in signing the Atlantic Charter, all members of the United Nations pledged jointly and separately to respect the rights proclaimed by the charter.

Seeks "Time Table"

Word-weary delegates, toiling through the sixth week of the peace conference, were cheered by a suggestion of Britain's Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin to the Big Four that they set a "time table" for the signing of treaties with five enemy states.

Still lost in a maze of amendments after 36 days of deliberation, the 1,500 delegates were to hear today the Ukraine's views on the Big Four proposal to internationalize Trieste. As Russia has already stated her opinion that Yugoslavia should get the disputed territory that is now part of Italy, it seemed certain that the Ukraine would follow suit. Russia has agreed however, to support the Big Four's internationalization plan.

The Foreign Ministers' council decided to delay action on a Russian proposal to postpone from Sept. 24 to Nov. 11 the New York session of the general assembly of the United Nations, pending the return of U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes from Germany.

Meanwhile Bevin, who was scheduled to leave for London to attend a conference on the Palestine problem, made an earnest effort to create a little far-sighted planning among the delegates that might expedite matters.

The British secretary went so far as to suggest a "time table" to include a date for the finish of the conference and a new date to begin the drafting of treaties with Germany and Austria. He tied this proposal to his conditional approval of Russia's desire to postpone the general assembly session.

SCHOOL STRIKE AFTERMATH IS NEW PROBLEM

(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

The return of school-days caused controversies over the transportation of children to at least two eastern Pennsylvania communities.

In the Wilkes-Barre area, the issue of bus hire during a strike by drivers of the People's Railway Company of Nanticoke, resulted in dismissal from classes of some 700 Newport township high school children. School officials decided at a special meeting to dispense with all school transportation rather than be charged with strikebreaking methods by having another company provide buses.

The meeting was called after officials of Local 1226, Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach employees (AFL) representing the strikers, warned that a picket line would be thrown around the school if it continued to haul students in eight vehicles of the Slocum-Dorrance Bus company.

"Not A Religious Issue"

The board said it would cease using the Slocum-Dorrance buses and expressed hopes that the strike situation would be settled within a few days before school officials meet again to discuss the problem. Meanwhile pupils were directed to find their own transportation.

In Kennett Square, parochial school students rode public school buses over the protests of the Kennett Consolidated public school. Officials of the public school said they announced last week they intended to cease transporting parochial school students on buses, a practice started in 1932.

E. W. Rupert, principal of the public school, said the dispute was "not a religious issue," adding that if they carried the parochial students, they would have to carry all private schoolchildren.

GREEK PLANE IS SHOT DOWN BY JUGOSLAVS

By L. S. CHAKALES

Athens, Sept. 7 (AP)—The Greek cabinet reimposed drastic emergency measures today in an effort to stop continued violence as Yugoslav-Greek relations caused new worry.

Acting Premier Stylianos Gonatas asserted that Yugoslav declarations on Macedonia, as voiced at the peace conference in Paris, supported "our suspicions that the trouble and disorder in Greece are not exclusively an internal matter."

He made his statement as Greece studied a possible protest to Marshal Tito over the Greek military plane forced down in Yugoslavia by anti-aircraft fire.

Plane Downed

The official Yugoslav news agency Tanjug said anti-aircraft fire downed the Greek plane, and repelled two other Greek aircraft which attempted to destroy the downed plane "in order to obliterate evidence of violation of Yugoslav territory."

Deputy Chief of Staff Petzopoulos conferred for 45 minutes with the Yugoslav military attache today. He quoted the Yugoslav as saying there was no doubt the Greek pilot had "lost his bearings." An official announcement of the conference said it took place "in an atmosphere of cordiality." The Yugoslav ambassador to Greece recently was withdrawn to Belgrade.

Task Force At Athens

These developments came as a U. S. navy task force, headed by the carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt, lay at anchor in the port of Athens and while the U. N. Security Council was weighing the Ukraine's bitter charges that Greece threatened peace in the Balkans.

Gonatas said the emergency measures, lifted before last Sunday's plebiscite, were reimposed because attacks by leftist bands had intensified rather than diminished since the plebiscite.

RAISE CEILINGS ON MEATS FOR NEXT TUESDAY

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON

Washington, Sept. 7 (AP)—American housewives face a $600,000,000 boost in their annual meat bills but OPA officials said today most of the increase will fall on those who can afford it.

The $600,000,000 jump results from an average increase of three and three quarter cents a pound in retail meat prices ordered by the agency when ceilings return to the butcher shops on Tuesday.

This is the difference, OPA said, between average meat ceilings on June 30, when controls lapsed and the new higher prices, which still will be below those of the last two months.

Some Old Ceilings

Price Administrator Porter flew to Chicago for a private conference at which he received assurances from major packers that they will "help make meat price controls work."

A big share of the beef, 42 per cent of the pork, and a much smaller share of lamb and mutton will return to the same ceilings that prevailed last June. Most of the price increases were tacked onto the prime and choice cuts.

All OPA men carefully avoided any attempts to say just how much the rollback will be on prices that have been charged during the period of no ceilings.

Lost To Anderson

They explained that the pricing pattern in the million-odd retail shops is highly varied and in any event the housewife who does the buying will have all the answers when she goes marketing Tuesday.

One OPA official reminded reporters too that Congress discouraged such comparisons by attaching a rider to OPA funds. This bars payment of salary to any official or OPA worker who "engages in preparing or disseminating general propaganda in support of price control."

OPA leaders, who lost a battle with Secretary of Agriculture Anderson over returning all ceilings to June 30 levels, said they accepted Anderson's estimates of the rollback. He put them at about 30 per cent on pork at the livestock level and a "substantial amount" on beef.

Bacon Raised Most

Highest boost on the list is an 18 cent a pound rise in sliced Canadian bacon that is ready to eat. Increases of as much as 15 cents a pound were made on other special bacons, lamb loin chops and other choice meats.

Choice and good grades of beef (AA or A) were hoisted from 8 to 10 cents a pound for the best steaks and roasts while ordinary bacon, stew meat, and other less expensive cuts were upped 4 and 5 cents.

No increase was made in the two lower grades of beef, in hamburger, sausage, ham, veal and cuts and a long list of items found on the tables of those who must watch food costs.

Commissioners Home From Convention

An amendment to the tax law which would allow Adams county commissioners to levy in one tax the funds needed for the county and county institutions, was approved for submission to the legislature at the annual convention of county commissioners in Philadelphia this week, Clarence C. Smith, chief clerk here said today.

Mr. Smith and Commissioners George P. Taylor, J. Arthur Boyd and Quintin D. Robert returned to Gettysburg Friday afternoon from the three-day Philadelphia convention.

Combining of the tax levy would save approximately two week's book-keeping time in the commissioners' office, Mr. Smith said. Under the present set-up, two sets of records have to be made, one for the county tax and the other for the institution tax.

CARDINALS WIN; BOSOX, YANKEES DROP CONTESTS

By JOE REICHLER

Associated Press Sports Writer

Its St. Louis slugging against Brooklyn pitching as the front-running Cardinals and runner-up Dodgers race down the stretch two and a half games apart in a sizzling September drive for the national league pennants.

Each team has won six of seven games since September 1, with the Cards relying upon their punch to offset spotty pitching while the Dodgers have been getting splendid hurling to atone for their ineptitude at the plate.

The Cards gave a perfect example last night of the way they've been playing in recent days when they outslugged the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-6 in a free-hitting game at Sportsman's park. A total of 31 hits were made by both teams, 16 by the Cards including a three-run homer by Terry Moore in the fourth inning which decided the game.

Giants Lace Phils

In the only other league game, the Giants, aided by three home runs, overwhelmed the Philadelphia Phillies 16-2 at the Polo grounds. Ernie Lombardi was the big gun for the Giants, the huge catcher poling a grand slam homer in addition to two singles. In all he drove in five runs.

Boastful Bobo Newson, backing up his talk with some fine pitching, snapped the Boston Red Sox' winning streak at eight by twirling the Senators to an 11-inning, 3-2 victory over the American league leaders under the lights in Washington.

Despite the loss, Boston needs only three more victories to clinch the flag since the second place New York Yankees bowed to the Athletics in Philadelphia at night 4-3.

Paul (Dizzy) Trout, back in winning stride, fashioned his 13th victory and his fifth shutout by pitching the Tigers to a four-hit 9-0 triumph over the Cleveland Indians in Detroit.

All other teams were idle.

Eastern League

(By The Associated Press)

There's a new pitching record in eastern league annals today, thanks to Seranton's Tommy Pine.

The right-hander chalked up his 23rd victory of the season last night, when he won a 7-1 decision over the Utica Blue Sox. The Miners, securely in possession of the league title, thus achieved their 95th victory.

With only three losses charged against him, Pine had an average of .883, and is the first to pass the .837 reached in 1937 by Bill Gildbury of Elmira.

Elsewhere on the circuit last night, the Albany Senators broadened their second-place margin to a full game over the Wilkes-Barre Barons, by beating Elmira 5-2, and 12-4, the Barons won 8-3 over Binghamton. Hartford lost an exhibition game, 9-6, to the Boston Braves of the National league.

Hogan Is Missing At Tam O'Shanter

Chicago, Sept. 7 (AP)—Ben Hogan is missing from George S. May's "world championship" tourney which started today at Tam O'Shanter course, but the absence of golf's golden boy suited Byron Nelson, Sammy Snead, Lloyd Mangrum and Herman Barron just dandy.

That quartet will tangle over 36 holes in promoter May's $10,000 winner-take-all medal play test which might have been more of a golf lesson than a contest if leading money-winner Hogan had elected to compete.

But the new P.G.A. champion who already has banked $35,877 in 1946 prize loot asked to be excused so he could rest and attend to authorizing of a golf book. Nelson, whose prestige, if not his bank-book, suffered a severe jolt this season, quickly came out of semi-retirement at his Denton, Texas, ranch to substitute for Hogan.

OLD TWIRLERS WIN FOR NAIMAN

Harrisburg, Sept. 7 (AP)—The Naiman Photo nine of Washington, D. C., moved into today's quarter-final round of the All-American amateur baseball tournament through the work of three "youthful" hurlers, the youngest admitting to being 34 years old.

Ace of the Washington staff is Frank Watt, now a traffic cop in the nation's capital, but at one time a member of the hurling staff of the Philadelphia Phillies. He will be 44 his next birthday.

The southpaw member of the staff is Robert Lee "Lefty" McIntyre, who just passed his 43rd birthday and has been chalking up victories for the Naiman club for several years.

Leslie "Les" Hoff, who went to the hill yesterday and won an easy victory over Elkton, Md., is the baby of the staff. He is only 34. The experienced arms of these three flingers have moved the Naiman team close to the championship, with the Cowan Fast Freight team of Baltimore and Spring Grove, Md., also unbeaten in three starts.

The tournament was thrown into an uproar last night when the Franco-American team of Waterbury, Conn., was disqualified from competition by the AAABA committee after a protest had been filed by the American Legion of Valley Stream, Long Island.

Parker And Talbert Tumbled From Race

Forest Hills, Sept. 7 (AP)—Bang! bang! and two of Uncle Sam's Davis cup stalwarts have been swatted right out of the national tennis championships the past two days, and in their places at the big tournament reached the semi-finals today were a couple of belting young Californians who might be ruling the roost a year from now.

Gone, specifically, were Frankie Parker, champion of the past two years, and Billy Talbert, who chased him to the wire on each occasion. Talbert got the post-war axe first, at the hands of Bob Falkenburg, the University of Southern California youngster. Parker got it yesterday from Tom Brown, Jr., of San Francisco.

Where Falkenburg's win over Talbert on Thursday caused a measure of surprise, it was nothing compared to the excitement around the clubhouse after Brown got through blistering Parker in five sets.

New Oxford

New Oxford—The Crawford farm, R. 1, which is tenanted by Mr. and Mrs. George W. Dunstan who moved there two years ago, was sold last week at public auction to Charles C. Spangler, near East Berlin. Mr. and Mrs. Dunstan intend to remain for a time and later purchase a farm property.

Miss Marie Geisler, who taught for several years at Gable's school-house, Paradise township, near East Berlin, has been transferred to the local grade school where she began her duties on Tuesday as primary teacher.

Harland C. Staub, has returned from Harrisburg where he attended a meeting and car display for Kaiser-Frazer dealers. He was also present at the luncheon given these dealers at a Harrisburg hotel.

Vegetables, fruits and flowers will be brought to the First Lutheran church this evening to be used as decorations for the annual Harvest Home service to take place there Sunday morning with the Rev. George E. Sheffer, pastor, in charge.

Miss Janet Louise Duttera, a graduate of the last class of the local high school, is preparing to leave over the week-end to enter the freshman class of Indiana State Teachers' college, Indiana, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Newhard, New Cumberland, who were married several weeks ago, were guests this week at the home of her mother, Mrs. Edith Weaver, and family. The bride is the former Miss Martha Weaver. Other guests at the Weaver home during the past week included Mr. and Mrs. Raphael Weaver and daughters, Agnes, Bernadine and Mary, with William Tully, all of Baltimore.

Ten children were enrolled as beginners at the local grade school which reopened Tuesday morning. They are: Gloria Ann Byers, Priscilla Elaine Dalmeyer, Ruth Ann Drum, Rebecca Ellen Gobrecht, Patricia Ann Groft, Iris Jean McDannell, Yvonne Donna Rice, Claudia Ellen Straley, Glenn Paul Miller and David Edwin Winebrenner, 4th. Their teacher will be Miss Marie Geisler.

Miss Anna Catherine Alwine, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Alwine, near town, and a student nurse at the University of Pennsylvania hospital, Philadelphia, is spending her annual three-weeks' vacation at her family's home.

YANKS WOUNDED IN CHINA; TRUCE TEAM BOMBED

By TOM MASTERSON
Peiping, Sept. 7 (AP)—Informed sources at Sino-American truce headquarters today said U. S. officials could be expected to protest strongly to Chiang Kai-shek over the bombing of a truce team near Chengteh and the reported wounding of three Americans.

The Chinese government's air force "all along has been a thorn in the side" of executive headquarters, the source said.

"Theoretically, the air force should obey agreements made by tripartite headquarters, but actually it never has." Tripartite headquarters comprises U. S., Chinese government and Chinese Communist representatives.

Uses U. S. Planes, Bombs
Unconfirmed Chinese Communist reports placed casualties in the Chengteh bombing at 20—including three Yanks wounded, one seriously, and four Communists killed. The team had evacuated Chengteh a day or two before that Jehol province capital was captured by government forces.

The government air force flies U. S. planes and uses U. S. bombs, gasoline and supplies.

A headquarters representative said the government air force's most flagrant violation of a truce agreement was the Yunnan incident. Communist troops, which had besieged Yunnan for nearly nine months, agreed to permit the Nationalists to evacuate the city under directions of truce headquarters. As the evacuation began, government planes strafed the Communists, who called off the pack.

A rescue team prepared to fly to Chengteh today to attempt to bring back the bombed and strafed truce team. Lack of communications prevented headquarters from obtaining confirmation or details of the attack.

Sunday visitors at the home of Miss Amanda Walker were Mrs. Mattie Hospelhorn and son, Randolph, of York; Mr. and Mrs. Deal and son, Mark, of Smithsburg, Md.; Florence Nell, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Grimes and two children and Theodore Coleman and eight children, of Waynesboro.

Gene Secrest, of Neumanstown, who spent the past week with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Folden, and Miss Jeannette Secrest, who spent the week-end with her grandparents, have returned to their home.

Mrs. George Folden and her granddaughter and grandson, Gene and Jeanette Secrest, spent Labor Day at Hershey park, near Harrisburg.

Miss Delores Fritz, of York, is spending some time with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fritz.

FAITH—IT HEALS ALL

We could not live out a day without faith. Every move we make is backed by our faith. We have faith in material things, and faith in our fellowman. The very food we eat requires faith—faith in its goodness and nourishment. When we board a street car, bus, or train, we do it with our faith in the one who handles it and in that which transports us.

The Bible phrase—"Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen"—is a very good definition. Faith is that invisible thing that we must carry with us at all times, if we would be useful and happy.

All religion is based upon faith, not upon mere creeds and dogma. It is something that is evolved in the mind, and written down in the heart. We have faith in a Supreme Being because we see the evidence so markedly everywhere we look. When doubters gathered about the figure of Jesus, he exclaimed, sadly no doubt: "O ye of little faith."

If we had faith in our fellowmen everywhere, and they in us, there would be no wars, nor rumors of wars. The human equation would stand out like a lighted tower in the night. Mistrust and suspicion and both boiled in selfishness and hatred, are poisons that are eating out the heart of universal peace among all men.

In our individual lives faith is the one thing that heals all our wounds of doubt and mental distress. It lifts us up, and leads us on—but we must grasp it with will and purpose. All discoverers and inventors, all pioneers in every variety of endeavor, have been men and women of great faith.

We must have faith in the United Nations, else it will fail. Most of all, each nation must have faith in it, each keeping in mind the good of the world, not merely the advantage hoped for its own nation. Faith alone can heal the wounds of war, and give to the world a healthy and lasting peace.

Faith may be invisible, but so is electricity. But the moment that you contact the right wires you get light. So with faith, the moment you contact it, that moment you get light in your life, strength to bear pain, sorrow, or disappointment. And often you get that faith that is essential to move a mountain!

FAMILY FISHING TRIP
Now when it comes to fishing there are various ways to go:

The lonesome likes to steal to spots he fancies none may know.

The thoughtful fellow wants a friend to chat with now and then.

The women think, for baiting hooks, a fishing trip needs men;

But best of all is hire a boat, a sturdy one and strong, and let the children they may go and take them all along.

Some men would wade the rapid streams, and that is lonely fun.

Some choose to cast the lily pads, fine sport when neatly done.

On silence other men insist. They argue fish can hear

And will not come to take the bait when chatters are near.

But give me laughter in the boat, and shrieks of pure delight,

And children shouting back and forth: "I think I've got a bite!"

The youngsters will be up at dawn when such a day is planned.

You'll find them waiting at the car with fishing gear in hand.

Their eyes will dance with ecstasy; and this you may be sure,

The memory of that fishing trip forever will endure.

For best of all the fishing joys the ancient sport bestows

Is that particular summer day when all the family goes.

Riding with Russell

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
by FREDERICK C. RUSSELL
Member S.A.E.

The best safety rule I know is Franklin's warning: "The way to be safe is never to be secure."

It is never necessary to drop the engine pan and then wonder if the bearings are loose enough to require replacing. Not while an oil pressure tester is handy. Such a device sends oil through the system under normal pressure, and as the oil circulates you watch to see what happens at the motor bearings. If there is merely a slow dripping from the bearings they are tight enough, but if the dripping is fast you can conclude that they are a bit worn, though perhaps not worn enough to require installing new inserts. If, however, the oil comes out in a steady stream, no matter how fine, the wear is excessive and an overhauling is in order.

Take Off That Watch
Since the early days it has been considered the mark of wisdom to be especially careful of the electrical system when working around a motor. That is why owners are cautioned to disconnect one of the battery terminals if cleaning the engine with kerosene. More recently it is being found that a metal wrist band for your watch can be the source of trouble. A friend of mine was working on his motor using a wrench to adjust the generator's position. Suddenly there were sparks. His first thought was that he had shorted the circuit with the wrench, but he quickly changed his conclusions when he found that the band for his watch had done the shorting. Before he could remove it the heated band had burned his wrist.

Stop-Leak Cocktails
I won't go into the details of how radiator stop-leak compounds work nor attempt to pass judgment on the relative merits of different brands, but I thought you'd be interested to know some of the ingredients which go into such cocktails. In these you find, in addition to denatured alcohol, asbestos fibers, and sodium bicarbonate, such things as dehydrated flour, gum resins, clay and borax. In most cases at least 75 per cent is water. So when some old timer suggests oatmeal to stop that radiator leak he isn't so whacky at that. But better stick to the prepared solutions, even though they seem to have some odd ingredients. They usually do a good job.

Mechanic Joe Speaking:
"One of the unnecessary expenses in servicing cars these days is failure to give the hydraulic braking system a thorough cleaning out when replacing parts. Usually when an owner has to replace the Master cylinder he thinks he is really giving the system the works, and it is easy enough to see why he is so often disappointed by having the brakes work just as badly as they did before.

"Much master cylinder trouble is due to clogged vents and ports. Pressure builds up and the brakes apply themselves. So a new master cylinder is installed. Soon this one also is misbehaving. It is just because the brake fluid is filled with small bits of disintegrated rubber. This must be removed by a generous flushing with the special fluids for this purpose. Then when all new fluid is installed the new cylinder will work without the handicap of foreign matter."

Give It A Drink
Why the battery needs water is something few motorists fully understand, else they would be more careful to give their batteries this simple attention. The water is needed to provide the medium for chemical action between the plates. Just as soon as the water level drops through evaporation some of the plate area becomes exposed and thus is inactive. It is just like cutting down the battery's capacity. Parched plates also may buckle, and of course since a partially inoperative battery is more likely to go dead you are inviting a recharge. Every time a battery goes to such extremes its life is shortened.

Stops a Gauge Knock
That mysterious clicking noise which you hear so plainly in the driving compartment may not be the speedometer after all. If you hear it when the engine is idling and when running with the engine well warmed up you may be justified in suspecting the oil pressure relief valve. On some cars this has been eliminated by installing a special elbow between the valve and the oil to the oil gauge. This cuts down the opening. In making the installation it is important to see that the line is free of lubricant.

Did You Know That
On steel-faced cylinder head gaskets the bolts should be drawn down about 15 per cent more than for other types of gaskets?

Your engine has been knocking more lately not because it is collecting too much carbon but because fuel octane rating has been lowered. No motor overhaul job is complete without examination of the welsh plugs in the water jackets. These sometimes are called-core-plugs or expansion plugs. If leaky they may cause serious trouble.

Just a Wild Ping
Just for your information preignition is sometimes called a "wild ping." It always occurs before the spark from the plugs and usually is the result of too much carbon (which glows) or localized hot spots within the combustion chamber. In a few cases such spots have been found to be rough edges of badly machined cylinder heads.

Wonder Book of Racing
You fellows who like motor racing will have a heyday with Floyd Clymer's new book, the history of the Indianapolis 500 Mile Race. Its 320 large pages carry 1,000 illustrations, and there is the complete story from the time the track was built, and buyers of the book will receive without extra charge a supplement covering this year's contest. Such names as pass the scene in this fascinating volume — Milton, Oldfield, Rickenbacker, Harroun, DePalma,

De Paolo, Duray, Hartz, Meyer, Shaw and many, many others. Started in 1909 this most difficult course has been America's proving ground for many a development which you and I now take for granted. The book tells the whole story in such detail that you really can go over each contest as if you were seeing it run off. Someone has figured out that the book costs you only ten cents a race. Cheap enough!

In the Motor Mail
Q. I have done everything in an effort to check overheating. The engine has been practically rebuilt. Can you help? H. L. M.

A. Don't like that word "everything." What about the possibility of dragging brakes or a slipping clutch? Is the right grade of oil used? Is the car overloaded and driven too fast? Are there too tight front wheel bearings? Is ignition timing sufficiently far advanced? What about the carburetor mixture? Did you say "everything?"

Q. What will I do if the starter will not turn over the engine? D. R.

A. There's a simple, sincere plea for you, fellow motorists. It came to me from a Chicago driver who apparently has not taken advantage of the opportunity to get a push when needed. First, he should blow the horn or switch on the lights to see if the battery is up to par. If there is plenty of juice then there are various things that may be wrong with the starter circuit, the starter control or the starter motor itself. Or the Bendix drive may be the culprit. At this point you call a mechanic.

Q. I have been told that on my car I should occasionally clean out the oil pressure relief valve. This was never necessary on any other cars I have owned. Is this truth or fancy? J. J. L.

A. This is a fact, and important in your case. Lube for the timing gears on this model is metered by the by-passed oil passing through a small hole in the relief valve plunger. There will be trouble if the valve isn't kept clean.

Q. What would cause the car to be hard to steer on some curves? It is usually noted in parking, too. H. H. C.

A. Steering gear housing isn't tightly bolted to the frame. Mr. Russell will answer questions regarding the safe care and operation of your car. Just address him at 254 Fern street, Hartford, Conn., and enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope for a personal reply.

The word cravat, meaning necktie, is derived from the name of Croat mercenary troops who fought for the Austrian Empire.

ASKS FOR FULL ENFORCEMENT

Harrisburg, Sept. 7 (AP)—Governor Martin called today for elimination of the "fix" in traffic citations as a measure to reduce mounting highway fatalities.

In a letter to every mayor, director of safety, burgess, sheriff and chief of police in Pennsylvania the governor declared:

"No law is stronger than its enforcement. Too many violations, from double parking to driving while intoxicated, are 'fixed' through personal friendship or political influence."

This, he said, discourages police officers in making arrests because "they know that no action will be taken."

"In view of the alarming increase in traffic accidents since V-J Day nothing should be left undone which will help to lower our accident rate," he said. "Strict law enforcement is a basic principle if we are to succeed in our efforts."

Martin's letter followed by three weeks a statewide highway safety conference he summoned to curb an increase of over 60 per cent in post-war traffic fatalities. His letter explained "there must be stricter enforcement of the law if lives are to be saved."

VA QUESTIONS JOBLESS PAY

Harrisburg, Sept. 7 (AP)—More than 60,000 veterans in Pennsylvania have received jobless benefits for 20 or more consecutive weeks under the G. I. Bill of Rights and the Veterans Administration wants to know why.

Admittedly concerned about the mounting number of ex-servicemen who are drawing readjustment allowances for extended periods of time, the VA has sought the co-operation of the state bureau of unemployment compensation to find out through questionnaires:

(1) If the veterans have refused jobs and why.

(2) The number of jobs to which they have been referred by the U. S. Employment Service.

(3) Their military occupation specialists and the types of jobs they held before the war.

(4) The extent, if any, of service disabilities.

Answers to these questions will be compiled in a statistical report. Said a state unemployment compensation bureau spokesman, "to aid in the readjustment of unemployed veterans."

The survey is expected to be completed by September 20 and the spokesman said steps will be taken immediately thereafter to place the figures before the VA for remedial action in respect to increased employment possibilities.

Carbon dioxide is removed from the atmosphere by rain and surface water, which dissolve the compound.

TEN BILLIONS IN FEDERAL FUNDS GOING TO VETS

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Sept. 7 (AP)—Upward of $10,000,000,000—of the $41,500,000,000 the government figures to spend on everything in the fiscal year of 1947—has been set aside for war veterans.

(The government's fiscal year starts July 1 in one year ends June 30 of the next. The 1947 fiscal year started last July 1 and will end June 30, 1947.)

Congress, before it quit for the season, appropriated about $10,000,000,000 for war veterans. That money covers veterans of all wars and ranges from education to pensions.

All of the $10,000,000,000 probably won't be spent in fiscal 1947, but most of it, say, perhaps $9,000,000,000, will be.

Greatest Ever
This appropriation for 1947 is greater than all the money appropriated by Congress for veterans from fiscal 1942 through fiscal 1946, which ended June 30.

In those five years the total appropriation was $8,463,654,000. Most of it—$4,780,000,000—was appropriated for fiscal 1946. But the 1947 appropriation more than doubles last year's.

The 1947 appropriation of $10,000,000,000 is probably the peak yearly figure on government spending for veterans although the total for each year for the next four or five years will run fairly close to it.

This was bound to be an extraordinary year since now most of World War II veterans are home and getting adjusted to civilian life again.

Covers Wide Range
The $10,000,000,000 which Congress voted for the veterans covers a wide range: from education, job training, new hospitals, temporary housing near schools, and care for amputees to terminal leave pay.

That's all for veterans of World War II—and the cost runs into billions. In addition are the costs of hospitalization and pensions of veterans of World War I and previous wars.

This year—fiscal 1947—the government expects to receive in revenue—taxes—about $39,600,000,000. That's $1,900,000,000 less than the $41,500,000,000 it figures to spend for all reasons.

(That $41,500,000,000—called the budget—covers all expenses, from the money for veterans to the pay for government clerks in Washington and the President's salary to running the army and navy.)

Breakdown Given
Here's how the $10,000,000,000 appropriated for veterans breaks down:

$559,305,915—This is the cost of running the Veterans Administration and includes salaries, mail, printing and binding.

$147,442,500 — Operating veterans hospitals.

$1,905,000,000—Pensions for all veterans.

$1,472,000—Military and naval insurance.

$169,535,000—National Service Life Insurance.

$3,491,387,000 — Readjustments benefits, such as education and job training.

$30,000,000—Cars for amputees.

$4,000,000—Canteens for veterans, such as in hospitals where they can buy cigarettes, candies.

$2,431,708,000—Terminal leave pay.

POWER WORKERS READY TO STRIKE

Pittsburgh, Sept. 7 (AP)—Weary, tense negotiators were summoned to Mayor David L. Lawrence's office today for another round of conferences in the Pittsburgh district's threatened power strike.

Although Duquesne Light company and Independent Union representatives did not meet last night—the first time since Tuesday no night sessions were held—the union's 10-man strike committee continued to prepare for a work-stoppage with a late meeting.

Union representative George L. Mueller said no decision has been reached on when to call a strike in the 817-square mile area served by the utility. Authoritative sources close to the committee, however, said plans were now so far advanced that a strike could be called any time and made effective within a few hours.

Reluctant the union would not accept the company's offer to submit the dispute to arbitration, Mueller declared.

"The company's arbitration plan is so vague and nebulous that it is nothing but a trap. We are willing to negotiate. We will not arbitrate because we know the company has something up its sleeve."

Chapter 15

Lillie, like Pud, kept it a decent place; quiet, unobtrusive. She wished sometimes that she could keep the customers the same way. They were mostly people from the Hill now. "And the things I see," Lillie would say to Bill, "and the things I hear." She flipped her hand loosely. "If they had happened in the East End in the old days, there would have been murder."

But Lillie did not talking except in the right places, and her talking and her money kept Pud's Place unmoored.

The W. C. T. U. and the Better Bradford League and hundreds of law-abiding citizens looked on Pud's place as a scourge and a blot on the city, but the citizens of the Hill and the North End regarded it as their oasis, and the East End mourned for the old Washington House, while Lillie, like Pud, simply thought of it as a means to make an honest living.

1928 came and Lillie left off her mourning, for Pud, and then it was 1929, the year when everyone got new diamonds or silver fox neckpieces, or fur coats, or new cars, and after that through 1930 and 1931 there was an air of desperation about the merriment in Pud's Place. Once a customer left there to go home and sit in his garage with the engine running, and another said good-night to Lillie and left his home the next morning with the police at his side while men from the bonding company began going frantically over his books, and still a third walked out of Pud's Place never to be seen or heard of again. Lillie put up money for Alfred Smith's campaign and kept her counsel. Because she talked little going from table to table, she heard much. A bit here added to a bit there and Lillie knew one night that the Bradford mills were tottering, and if the mills fell, the bank would go and the scandal that would break would smell to high heaven. She spent the greater part of that night in the upstairs parlor, going over her books.

In the morning she dressed carefully and walked once again to the steel mills. Lillie felt the quickening of interest run through August Bradford's office like a drop of quicksilver released on a clear surface. She was used to that awakening of interest, that one brief moment of startled recognition before customs and manners hid it until it could be decently brought out again after she had passed.

Almost before Lillie in her high, clear voice had said, "I'm Mrs. James J. O'Dell, and I would like to see Mr. Bradford please," a girl was saying, "Yes, Mrs. O'Dell," and was slipping swiftly through a door, to come back and show her through it.

Lillie stood inside the door for a moment, remembering briefly August Bradford as she had seen him on other occasions, when he had been as strong and as cold as the steel he made. Time had made little change in him that Lillie could see. The only indication of any strain was in the pressure of his hands upon the desk as he stood resting his hands upon it. "Good morning, Mrs. O'Dell," he said gravely, "what can I do for you?"

Lillie was wasting no time in amenities. "I hear a great many things," Lillie said. "You need money. How much?"

He shrugged his shoulders slightly. "A quarter million at least," Lillie answered. "I have thirty thousand toward it. Who are the men who should loan you the rest?"

"Prentiss Gail," Lillie raised her eyebrows. "Senator Gail?"

He nodded. "Dan Somerset. Philip Hanson. Bill Bellows."

Lillie was silent for a moment. "Make me a list," she said.

August Bradford drew a pad and pencil toward him. He tried to speak as he handed her the names. "I've made a lot of mistakes in my time," he said, "but I've never underestimated two things. The power of the press, nor of a woman." "Don't ever underestimate the power of this one," Lillie answered. "Besides we have one thing in common."

Not until long afterwards, long after the Bradford mills had touched bottom of the depression and come up, long after her money and that which she had "persuaded" some others to loan August Bradford had been strange, did Lillie ever think how strange it was that August Bradford had not asked her the whys or wherefores of her coming to his aid, but had simply let her walk into his office and take command. She wasn't spending too much time, though, trying to solve riddles. "We both knew," she concluded. "It was for Rodney."

Lillie repeated her visit to August Bradford early in 1937. The mills were moving, the bank had come through the Bank Holiday, but August Bradford still owed more than a hundred thousand on his personal notes. Going into his office this time, Lillie decided that she and August Bradford were much alike. They wasted no time with preliminaries or niceties. They got down to business.

As soon as the door was safely closed behind the secretary who had brought her in, Lillie said, "Rodney's ready for college this year?" August Bradford nodded, and Lillie laid a roll of bills on his desk. "I'm seeing him through."

All August Bradford said was "Thank you, Mrs. O'Dell." They shook hands silently and as Lillie said to herself later, "That was that." Rodney went off to Harvard. (To be continued)

Chapter 16

Lillie was a very busy woman in those days. Prohibition had passed, and the Washington House that had become Pud's Place became in turn "Lillie's" with reservations made days and weeks in advance. Out on the Bensalem Pike where Sweet William had run into an accident one night, was a series of filling stations, and along the pike rolled the trucking fleet of the O'Dell Transportation company. Back on the Dublin Pike, where on that same night long ago, Lillie and Pud, Sweet William and Mr. Bradford had rolled a car from the highway, was a dairy farm, and next to it the farm from which "Lillie's" got its beef and vegetables. Lillie was a very busy woman, who, when she had time, lived out at the farm, and when she didn't, stayed in a room at the cafe.

But there wasn't a night that she didn't walk through the old Washington House, and one night in 1939 she stopped very suddenly and stared. There was a party of twenty at a table in one end of the room, a rather drunken party, and the one who seemed to have outdone all the others was a very lusty Posey whose name was Rodney Bradford.

Slowly Lillie regained the use of her legs and moved on about her rounds, stopping here for a word, or a quick pat on someone's shoulder. She worked her way back to the office and closed the door and went to the mirror that hung over a table at the far end of the room that had once been her parlor. She was forty-nine, as slim as any of the young gazelles who came to the cafe. Her hair had not darkened with the years but rather was fading to a silver-washed gold. In an evening dress, she was a figure that never failed to attract attention. She sat down at her desk and thought for a long time. Then she called her head waiter. After that she began to telephone.

Rodney Bradford never knew just how he happened to get in with the party of "Happy" Turner, whom every one knew controlled the politics of the state, nor how he happened to be constantly at the side of a woman whom they called "Lillie," but he knew it was a whooper of a party. It had started at "Lillie's" that night and it had gone across several states in fast motor cars. It had reached New York and it hadn't missed any spots there. Some of them he had been at before; the rest he had just heard about. It had been a party without a peer, and he had wakened with the granddaddy of all headaches in a strange room with the woman whom they called Lillie standing looking down at him.

She watched him rub his hand across his stubby chin. "How long have I been asleep?" he asked. "The best part of a day," Lillie answered, and smiled grimly to herself as he came wide awake, and sat up in the bed, clutching the sheet to him. "My God! Where am I? You're—we're..."

Lillie laughed aloud. "Relax. I'm old enough to be your mother, and you're not married to me nor to anybody else. You're wise, I see, to one of the dangers of being a Bradford and not knowing where you are or what you're doing."

He grinned a little shamefacedly. "That I'm afraid was not very gallant on my part. You're very beautiful and if I remember correctly, charming..."

"Alright," Lillie said, "and still old enough to be your mother and with money enough of my own not to be interested in the Bradford's."

"You're Lillie O'Dell, aren't you?" Rodney burst out.

"Right," Lillie answered crisply. "And we've been a place or two together. We've hit all the high spots from here to New York and back."

Lillie stopped long enough to light a cigarette, but when Rodney went to speak, she shook her head and said quickly, "Now I've got this to say to you. You've seen them all. Now stay away from them. You have an obligation. You have a name and you have wealth. According to the Constitution of this country, all men are created equal, so when some get more than their share of the money, there must be a reason for it. As I see it, it's a trust. Without the Bradford Mills and the Bradford interests, half of this city would starve. God knows it has done badly enough with the Bradford interests. But I will say this for your grandfather. He had done the best he knew how. But he's an old man, and this is a changing world. It's going to need young men with money and with faith and with principles. You don't get those things in bars. Remember that."

"Well, thanks," Rodney said sarcastically. He was still clutching the sheet to him like a protective armor. "But why do you give a damn about the Bradford's or me?"

"I just told you," Lillie's tone matched his. "Without the Bradford's, this city is done. As for you, Lillie was at the door before she finished. 'I knew your mother,' she

MOTHER HANDS BABES TO VA; AWAITS HELP

Philadelphia, Sept. 7 (AP)—Nineteen-year-old Mrs. Joyce E. Cawley today awaited a social agency's help in the solution of a problem which prompted her to plunk her ex-G.I. husband's $11.50 monthly pension check and her two baby daughters on the desk of a Veterans Administration office here with the angry declaration:

"I can't feed these children on this. If the Veterans Administration thinks it can be done, let them try it."

The mother left squealing three-months-old Barbara Joan and Betty Ann, 14 months, on the desk of a VA contact representative James McKetterick yesterday and stalked out. McKetterick turned the tots over to police who took them to a shelter of the Society for the Protection of Children from Cruelty.

Couldn't Get Along Shortly afterwards Mrs. Cawley went to the police and said she had given up the idea of abandoning her children to the VA. She was told the SPOC officials would care for them for the night.

The mother sobbed that she hadn't intended to leave the children—"I was so disgusted I didn't know what to do."

"When I got home I realized what a mistake I'd made. I love my babies but we just can't get along on the money we get from the state and the government. It only amounts to about $72.50 a month," she continued.

Mrs. Cawley said she would visit the children today and that the SPOC officials had promised to help straighten things out. She said she "would like to keep Betty Ann as she is the oldest," and "maybe we could have someone care for Barbara Ann until I can myself."

Husband Disabled "Perhaps some people will criticize me for wanting to put Barbara Joan in a home," the mother sighed. "But Barbara Joan is only three months old and hasn't gotten to know me well yet. With Betty Ann, it's different x x x but I hope that all of us will be back together and that my husband will get well, too."

The bed-ridden husband, William H. 25, told reporters he was recently discharged from a government hospital and that he "still can't even move." VA officials said records showed he was partially disabled.

Police detective lieutenant Matthew H. Clark, after questioning the mother, said the Cawleys, in addition to the VA pension, receive aid from the state which includes $72.50 a month in money and food orders, plus two quarts of milk a day.

Mr. and Mrs. Garland Halter and son, Billy, of Hanover, visited recently at the home of Mrs. Halter's mother, Mrs. Lula Fisel.

Marlin E. Miller, of Mechanicsburg, was a recent visitor at the home of his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Levan.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lindner and son, Jack, and daughter, Nancy, of Hartman.

He was accompanied home by his son, James, who spent the week at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Lamont. Mr. Garrity remained at the Lamont home, where she will spend a week.

Samuel Lightner and son, Dick, of Reading, were Tuesday guests at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lightner.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Althouse spent several days in Roanoke, Va., at the home of Mrs. Leroy Althouse and other friends.

closed the door firmly on Rodney's sharp cry of "Wait! Wait a minute, please." She didn't hear him say, "That's what she said the other time she brought me here. I wonder if she knows I'm intercollegiate boxing champion."

That summer Lillie heard Rodney Bradford had gone into the mills as an ordinary laborer in the Open Hearth, and she settled back at her desk and tapped her pencil against her teeth and smiled a rather satisfied smile. Others might talk about Rodney Bradford learning his grandfather's business from the bottom up and give him credit for being a real Bradford. But Lillie, she was simply being Violet's son. She had wanted the best for Violet, and Violet had gotten it.

MONDAY AND TUESDAY

A comedy-romance tailored for

Ginger Rogers is "Heartbeat," which presents the star in a romance with a background of complex comedy situations, in the gay locale of sophisticated Paris. Lavishly produced this RKO Radio release marks the return to the screen of Jean Pierre Aumont, east opposite Miss Rogers.

Ginger plays a little French girl Arlette, seeking a job and a husband. Answering a newspaper ad for a job, she is greeted at the door of a respectable looking home by the stately Professor Aristed, really head of a school for pickpockets. He impresses Arlette to "lift" the diamond stickpin of an Ambassador. Foiling her in the attempt, the Ambassador takes Arlette to his home, where he dresses her in style and has her appear at the lavish Embassy ball that evening, where she learns she is to dance with a young man whose watch she must steal. From this point on the affair races through many unique complications to a highly romantic climax.

WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY

One of the rare treats of the current cinema season will be brought here Wednesday when those fabulous Marx Brothers—Groucho, Harpo and Chico—open at the Majestic theatre in this latest and funniest film travesty, "A Night in Casablanca." It is a United Artists release.

The story is set in the post-war atmosphere of colorful Casablanca, with a swank hotel as the center of action. The inimitable Groucho is in charge of the modus operandi, with the completely wacky assistance of brothers Harpo and Chico. The plot, if anything so amusingly contrived can be called a plot, concerns a ruthless group of Nazis masquerading as Dutch aristocrats who have smuggled the hidden European art treasures and jewels into the hotel prior to shipping them to a South American hide-away. How the Brothers Marx tell this plot is something to made audiences roll in the proverbial aisles.

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

Lassie and Elizabeth Taylor in a scene from "Courage of Lassie."

Exciting drama in the wilderness—thrilling action in frontier warfare on Attu—the heretofore love story of a little girl and her dog. Such is the three-ply formula that places "Courage of Lassie," new M-G-M technicolor hit opening at the Majestic theatre.

Elizabeth Taylor is seen as the heroine of "Courage of Lassie," with Lassie, beautiful collie dog star, as her loyal comrade. Frank Morgan appears as a lovable old sheep rancher, and a third leading role is that of Tom Drake, young army sergeant whose patrol is saved from annihilation by the Japs through the collie's heroism.

PRE-WEDDING PACT

Omaha, Nebr., (AP)—A young man and woman at the marriage license bureau spent some time reading a document before requesting their marriage license.

Then they asked a clerk to witness the document, under which:

1. The groom could get a divorce at the end of one year if it appeared to him the marriage was not "sincere."

2. The woman was to pay the expenses for the divorce.

After the document was witnessed, the prospective groom paid $2 for the license.

DIVORCE RATE UP

Uniontown, Pa., Sept. 7 (AP)—Citing a total of 249 divorces—including 31 last month—issued in Fayette county so far this year, Prothonotary John J. Brady said today the rate of separations has shown a "tremendous upswing" over that of previous years.

BYRNES SPEECH

'COUNTER MOVE'

Washington, Sept. 7 (AP)—Diplomatic authorities today called the Stuttgart address by Secretary of State Byrnes a bold attempt to sell to the German people an American-type political system as an attractive alternative to both Nazism and Communism.

Officials familiar with the background of the speech said it was partially a counter-move to the statement on Germany by Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov in Paris July 10.

They underscored as of top importance Byrnes' reference to the eventual need of "a federal constitution for the United States of Germany" which should insure democracy and the basic freedoms.

American officials have talked in general terms for months of the possibility of a federalized Germany, but none has ever put the idea into words which suggested so strongly the American type of federal union.

Molotov strongly opposed the federal plan. He said it would dismember Germany and was favored only by Allied authorities in the western occupation zones, not the German people.

Byrnes went into far greater detail than Molotov in his proposals both for the political and economic reconstruction of Germany and his efforts to persuade the German people that the United States intends to treat them justly and fairly within the terms of the Potsdam Big Three agreement.

Acquit Captain In Lichfield Trial

Bad Nauehim, Germany, Sept. 7 (AP)—Capt. Joseph A. Robertson of Toledo, O., was acquitted by a military court today of charges that he authorized and permitted cruelty to American prisoners in the U. S. Army's Lichfield, England, guard house.

Robertson, former commander of a guard company at Lichfield, was the last of six officers and ten enlisted guards to be tried in connection with mistreatment of prisoners there during the last year of the war.

His acquittal left the final score on the trials: nine enlisted guards and four officers convicted, one enlisted guard and two officers acquitted.

Chalk used for marking on all sorts of surfaces is actually calcium carbonate.

John W. Brehm

a commercial college in Carlisle.

The legal profession attracted the local tailor and he started work in the law office of the late John R. Miller, Carlisle. Four months later he left "because there wasn't enough money in it." He entered the employ of the late L. C. Leshner, Carlisle tailor, where for three years he practised cutting and coat making.

Came Here In 1905

In 1905 Mr. Brehm decided to enter business for himself and with the late William M. Seligman opened a partnership as merchant tailors in the building now occupied by The Shoe Box. They remained there until 1909 when the partnership was dissolved and Mr. Brehm opened his own shop in rooms now occupied by Bulleit and Bulleit, attorneys, First National Bank building. His workshop was in the building now occupied by The Shetter House, Chambersburg street.

Prior to dissolving the partnership Seligman and Brehm purchased the Rupp and Enteline haberdashery business which was then operating in the store occupied by Shuman's cut-rate store, Baltimore street. The partners opened their new business in the First National Bank building in quarters now used as the office of the bank president and the bank vault.

$1.50 for Pants

Mr. Brehm opened his business on November 20, 1909 and his first customer was the late Doctor Mortuary, a veterinarian, who selected material for a $1.50 pair of pants from the only two samples Mr. Brehm had.

Brehm, The Tailor, remained in the bank building location until 1910 when he moved to the Winter building now occupied by Joe The Motorist.

In 1920 Mr. Brehm and the late Dr. J. E. Musseiman purchased the Guy Mickley building on Chambersburg street now occupied by Gilbert's Cleaning establishment where Mr. Brehm moved his business and remained for the next eight years. He then purchased his present building, 51 Chambersburg street, from John D. Lippy. He has remained there ever since.

Scattered Customers

Mr. Brehm has all his order books revealing that during his 41 years in business he has made more than 20,000 suits and overcoats. Some of his customers have been with him for more than 35 years. One customer, who resides in Arizona and has always purchased his clothes from the local tailor, Mr. Brehm has not seen in more than 30 years.

Other customers live in China, India, Panama Canal Zone and in practically every state in the union.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower and Major General Charles Willoughby, on General MacArthur's staff, have worn clothes by Brehm. Sons of a former president of Mexico have also been Brehm customers and one of the most faithful patrons was the late Eddie Plank, one of the greatest left-handers in major league baseball.

Had 22 Employees

The first sign, a piece of muslin cloth on which was painted J. W. Brehm, Tailor, by Charles Ecker 37 years ago, is still in Mr. Brehm's possession.

At one time Mr. Brehm employed 22 men and women and more than 100 Gettysburgians were taught the tailoring business in his shop.

To Mr. Brehm and the late W. H. "Boss" Tipton goes the credit for Gettysburg's "White Way."

In 1925 Messrs. Brehm and Tipton initiated a fund-raising campaign to install a "White Way" in Gettysburg. It was sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce but Brehm and Tipton did the work. They raised $13,500 and formally presented it to town council for the street lights. Council rejected it, only to have the lights installed some years later by another council.

Active In Town

Mr. Brehm has at various times served as president of the Chamber of Commerce and the Board of Health; was a charter member of the Gettysburg Lions club and is a member of the Eagles, Elks, Odd Fellows and Masons. He was county treasurer from 1941 to 1945 and served three terms on the school board, assisting in the construction of two school buildings. He is a member of the College Lutheran church.

In 1906 Mr. Brehm married the late Mabel Greenwalt, of Chambersburg. To this union was born one son, John G. Brehm, recently discharged from the armed forces and now in business in Jenkintown, Pa. Mrs. Brehm died in July, 1938.

Mr. Brehm's second wife is the former Miss Salome Wachter.

The Brehms will continue to reside in their apartment in the Brehm building recently sold to Lt. Col. Stuart Moyer and Kenneth Knox, of the Gettysburg News Agency.

During the war, passenger car consumption of motor fuel declined approximately 40 per cent and that of trucks 23 per cent.
